Rule of Thirds

VICTORIA POLICE

The basic principle behind the rule of thirds is to imagine breaking an image down into thirds (both horizontally and vertically) so that you have 9 parts.

Rule of Thirds

VICTORIA POLICE

- As you're taking an image you would have done this in your mind through your viewfinder or in the LCD display that you use to frame your shot.
- With this grid in mind the 'rule of thirds' now identifies four important parts of the image that you should consider placing points of interest in as you frame your image.
- Not only this – but it also gives you four 'lines' that are also useful positions for elements in your photo.

Rule of Thirds

VICTORIA POLICE

- The theory is that if you place points of interest in the intersections or along the lines that your photo becomes more balanced and will enable a viewer of the image to interact with it more naturally.

- Studies have shown that when viewing images that people's eyes usually go to one of the intersection points most naturally rather than the centre of the shot – using the rule of thirds works with this natural way of viewing an image rather than working against it.
